TRENTON, March 26,-Final adjournment of the Legislature took place at a few minutes after 6 o'clock this evening. The Senate finawait the action of the House, which had adopted a concurrent resolution calling for dissolution of the Legislature at 2 o'clock. Then the clock in the Senate chamber was stopped at 1:45, and the Republican Assen blymen went into caucus. There was trouble over the proposed constitutional amendments, but, after nearly two hours' discussion, an clary amendment, and, in order that there might be no trace of partisanship in its consid eration, it was decided to have its fate settled on the floor of the House. The caucus rejected the amendment providing for the division With it went the one prohibiting the appoint ment during recess of persons whose confirmation had been rejected by the Senate before

The Senate had included them in one amend ment, with the view of preventing the House from rejecting the districting feature. After the caucus adjourned the House adopted as a separate amendment the appointment profibition, and the Senate afterward adopted this The amendments prohibiting lotteries and gambling, providing for biennial sessions of the Legislature, and giving women the right to vote at school elections, except in the cities were passed by the House without opposition the Senate judiciary amendment some of the lawyers in the House tried to have sub stituted the amendment which the Senate rejected yesterday. The Hudson and Essex delegations solidly opposed the substitute, and it was voted down, 17 to 41, and by a vote of 53 to 4 the amendment was adopted which abolishes the existing State courts and creates a new Supreme Court of fifteen Judges, with law, equity, and appellate jurisdiction.

Senator Thompson resigned the Presidency at noon, and Senator Williams of Passaic county was chosen to succeed him. Later in the day Senators Thompson and Ward sent their resignations to the Governor, and were confirmed respectively as Clerk in Chancery and Inspector of Factories and Workshops. The Governor sent in nominations of four county law Judges, under the law just passed abolishing the lay Judges. County, making his third appointment to the Judgeship within a month. These and all pending nominations were confirmed this afternoon.

The bills of interest passed by the House ware:

Making it a misdemeanor to steal electricity from or tamper with the wires of electric light and power companies, punishable by $500 fine or two years' imprisonment; imposing a penalty of $90 for selling or giving cigarettes to a person under 16; establishing an asylum for the indigent blind at Englishtown, Monmouth county; repealing the Elective Judiciary law of 1895, which was declared unconstitutional providing for the establishing of a $250,000 normal school in Jersey City; prohibiting the granting of naturalization papers within thirty days preceding the November elections; prohibiting the holding of elections in salcons or barrooms.

The Annual Appropriation bill passed by a party vote, after Mr. Lower, Republican, had sriticized the Republicans for spending so much money on the militia, which, he said, was costing the State within $50,000 of what was given to the public schools.

In the Senate the session was wound up by passing resolutions complimenting every one connected with the upper branch. In the House, Mr. Queen, the Democratic leader, in behalf of the members, presented to Speaker De Rousse a large hall clock.

The Governor has in his hands nearly 300 bills, the accumulation of the past week's work. He has already signed or filed without his approval 120. He has unlimited time to consider those in his possession, as the law requiring him to act upon them within thirty requiring him to act upon them within thirty days has been repealed.

WAISTCOAT BUCKLE SAVED HIM. Louis Black's Escape from Beath by Bullet Shot by a Youth.

ROCHESTER, March 26,-Louis Black of the clothing manufacturing firm of Black & Meyer on North St. Paul street, was the victim of an attempted assasination to-day while on his way to lunch. The would-be assasin is Leon Rosenbaum, 21 years of age, a son of Mr. Rosenbaur of the firm of Seel, Rosenbaum & Steefel, clothor the firm of seel, Rosenbaum & Steefel, clothing manufacturers, whose factory is near that of Black & Meyers.

When Mr. Black crossed Andrews street he passed Mr. Rosenbaum, and greeted the boy with "Good morning." He had taken only a few steps past the young man when a pistol shot rang out and he felt something strike him in the back. Turning he exclaimed:

few steps past the young man when a pistol shot rang out and he felt something strike him in the back. Turning he exclaimed:
"My God, boy, what are you shooting me for?" Rosenbaum continued to fire and Mr. Black held his umbrella in front of him in an effort to protect himself from the flying bullets. Three shots were fired, the young man being within ten feet of his victim. Rosenbaum escaped up an alleyway. Mr. Black walked to his house, near by, and an examination of his back showed a bullet hole through the coat, the waistooat backle had been shattered. This evidently saved his life.

The boy is thought to be insane as the finites of Black and Rosenbaum are on intimate terms.

SHE CUFFED MR. THOMPSON.

He Had Arrested Her Son for Snowball-ing Women-She Couldn't Pat Up With It. Clarence A. Thompson's neighbors in Wilnorning about 9 o'clock in excited conversa tion with a large woman. They knew him to be a quiet man, and they wondered what alled him and the woman. As they watched they eaw the woman raise her hand and give Thompson a stinging cuff on the ear. Mr. Thompson turned and walked into his house.

There is an exceedingly lively set of boys near Willow lane, and they love to snowball, Mr. Thompson remembers that he was a boy once himself. When he was made a victim by the boys he took his treatment in good part. One day, however, he saw a sight that raised his anger. A crowd of boys were throw-ing snowballs about the street when a party of vomen approached. The boys didn't dare throw anything at the woen openly, but by throw anything at the woen openly, but by dextrous management they were able to throw the snowballs so that, while apparently aiming at each other, they hit the women.

Mr. Thompson saw what was going on. He pulled his hat down over his head, and ran toward the boys.

His approach was the signal for a volley of snowballs directed at him by the boys. After they had thrown them they scattered. He put after one and collared him in a few moments. The boy kicked and yelled, while his captor delivered a short sermon. Mr. Thompson said something like this:

"There, you rogue! I've caught you. You are a nice boy, now, ain't you? What do you mean by snowballing a woman, ch? You ought to be trounced, and I'd like to do it, too. I can't. I'm sorry to say, but I'll turn you over to the police."

I can't. I'm sorry to say, but I'll turn you over to the police."

The boy howled and struggled, but Mr. Thompson lugged him along until he met a policeman. He winked at the policeman and frowned at the boy.

"Officer, this boy has been snowballing women," Mr. Thompson said. "He ought to be locked up. I'll go with you to the station and see the Sergeant about him."

"All right," said the officer, and he took the boy by the arm. The three walked to the police station. There Mr. Thompson explained to the Sergeant that he simply wanted to frighten the boy, and did not want him locked up. The Sergeaut, the policeman, and Mr. Thompson then talked to the boy in a strain that made his hair stand on end. He at last, however, was dismissed. He said his name was Hoker.

however, was dismissed. He said his name was Boker.

The boy went home "mad clean through" and told his mother. She became as angry as he, and determined to wreak vengeance on the man who had got her son into a scrape. Her name is Mrs. Mary Boker, and it was she that the neighbors saw box Mr. Thompson's ears.

After Mr. Thompson's ears had been cuffed by Mrs. Hoker, he was in a quandary, and so he went to Gen. Issac S. Callin, an old friend of his father, for advice. Gen. Callin wrote a letter to Justice Tighe to see what could be done in the matter, and, as a result, Mrs. Boxer will appear in the Justice's court on April 2 to explain matters.

MISS VAN NORDEN LOYAL.

Soing to London to Study for a Commissio

When Commissioner Eva Booth returns to London she will take with her a New York banker's daughter, who crosses the ocean to prepare for a life work in the Salvation Army. The young woman is Miss Van Norden, the daughter of Mr. Warner Van Norden, Prestdent of the National Bank of North America, who lives at 16 West Forty-eighth street.

Miss Van Norden is perhaps 24 years old. York society, and shortly after her debut her mother died. Miss Van Norden had been church member, and now she has developed a strong tendency toward a religious life. She became interested in the work of the Salvation Army and joined the Auxiliary League, to which she was one of the most liberal contribwhich she was one of the most liberal contributors.

Four years ago she joined the Army. Immediately she donned a lassie's uniform, and forgot all about social functions. It was not that she cared to forget her old frends, but she flatly refused to go anywhere where her uniform would not be considered good form. Receptions and theatre parties and cotilions were therefore out of the question.

During the years that she has been a soldier she has done more or less special work and has been particularly useful in assisting Staff Captain Edith Marshall in interesting people to become members of the Auxiliary. Now, however, she proposes to go to London, enter the International Training Garrison, of which Mrs. Booth-Tucker and Commander Ballington Booth used to be the heads, and take the regular course of instruction which prepares an Army soldier for an officer's commission. When she is graduated Miss Van Norden will be ready to do any work and go anywhere that the may be ordered.

regular course of instruction which preparer an Army soldier for an officer's commission. When she is graduated Miss Van Norden will be ready to do any work and go anywhere that the may be ordered.

Miss Van Norden has not taken the step she has decided upon in haste. She has not only studied the Army and its work in this country, but she has visited every country in Europe where the Army flag flies. A couple of years ago she spent a year in Europe, visiting all of the important garrisons. Wherever she went she wore the Army uniform.

As might be supposed. Miss Van Norden is a stanch believer in the world-wide principle of the Army. She has no sympathy with Ballington Booth and the Volunteers. In Waterbury. Conn., on Wednesday night, she addressed a meeting of the auxiliary. After the meeting she said to a reporter:

"Commander Booth's leaving the Army will not-result in any serious disruption of the Army. Of the 6,000 auxiliaries he may have won over 150, not more. To take their places many new members have come in. Among this amples is my own father.

For a Lighthouse on Swan Island. WASHINGTON, March 26.-Senator McMillan, from the Committee on Commerce, will report to the Senate to-day a bill authorizing the construction of a lighthouse on Swan Island, in the Caribbean Sea. Should Congress provide for the construction of this light, the United States will obtain at small cost a strategic position in that sea and will fix the jurisdiction over Swan Island.

The result to be gained is not only an aid to navigation, already needed by our rapidly increasing trade, and in the opinion of the Lighthouse Board indispensable in case of the construction of the Nicaragus Canal, but also affords the opportunity to obtain a coaling station that will render the United States independent of the English port of Jamaica.

AGAINST USING THE RESERVE. The Money Is Voted All the Same and the Protesting Agents Walk Out of the Meeting Mr. Curzon Explains Why the Porte Was Not Told About the Plan. LONDON, March 26. - A despatch from Cairo to the Globe says that at the meeting of the Forn tian Public Debt Commission, held yesterday for the purpose of discussing the matter of grant-ing the sum of $500,000 from the reserve fund to meet the expense of the expedition up the Nile Valley, the Russian and French members of the Commission lodged a protest against such action and withdrew from the meeting. N. Curzon, Under Secretary to the Foreign Office, announced that the Government had not received any protest from the Porte against the expedition up the vailey of the Nile. The Sultan, he said, had inquired as to the nature of the military operations proposed, and explanations had been given in response to these in-quiries. Previous notice had not been given to the Porte, he said, because nothing had been proposed that was beyond the full competency and right of the Khedive of Egypt to engage in and to carry out.

City Clerk of Mount Vernon Suspended Pending Investigation.

MOUNT VERNOS, March 26.-City Clerk Ellas Pease has been suspended pending an investigation of his accounts and the hearing of charges of neglect of duty to be preferred against him. According to a report submitted to Mayor Lewis by City Comptroller Pond there are serious discrepancies in the accounts of the City Clerk. The matter was first brought to the attention of Mayor Lewis and the Common Council by ex-Mayor Brush, who charged the Clerk with not turning over to the city the money from fees and from permits. City Comptroller Pond was directed to make an investigation. In his report, he says there is an investigation. In his report he says there is reason to believe the City Clerk appropriated to his own use money paid him for searches and other documents; that the records of permits for the opening of streets were almost useless as a city record; that according to the number of permits issued the city should have received $3.413, but that $515 has been unaccounted for that in the license account a deficiency of $3,740.54 exists.

$3,413, but that $315 has been unaccounted for that in the license account a deficiency of $3,740.54 exists.

The Common Council ordered the City Clerk to appear before it on Monday next and explain. It is contended by the friends of Mr. Pesse that the alleged shortage is the result of carelessness. In support of this they point to the fact that some years ago when he held a minor city office he mixed his books so badly that when he turned them over he had turned into the city treasury some six hundred dollars more than he had received. The political opponents of Mayor Lewis to-day circulated the report that he had previous knowledge of the trouble in the City Clerk's office and had tried to keep the matter a secret until after the election for Mayor, at which it is expected he will be the Republican candidate. Mayor Lewis denies this.

OBITUARY.

Daniel B. Van Houten, who died on Wednesday in his apartments in the Hotel Winthrop 125th street and Seventh avenue, was born at 7 King street in 1828. His father, John Van Houten, was a teacher in the Holland Dutch school in old Greenwich Village, and died when his son was only 8 months old. His mother was a daughter of the Van Antwerp family. At 23 years of age Mr. Van Houten procured a clerkship in the Atlantic Marine Insurance Company, at 51 Wall street, and worked his way up until he became the assistant cashier of the company, which position he held until his death. In early life Mr. Van Houten became a member of the Brown Street Reformed Church, under the pastorate of the Rev. Dr. Stryker, and during his residence in the lower part of the city held several offices in the church. Upon removing further up town several years ago he transferred his membership to the Reformed Church at Forty-eighth street and Fifth avenue. In 1856 Mr. Van Houten became a member of the Historical Society. He was interested in the organization of the Holland Society in 1857, and continued his membership of both societies until his death. In 1858 Mr. Van Houten married Miss Emilie Hyde of Fishkill, who died childless a few years later. In 1864 he married Miss Maria Storms of New York, by whom he had one son, Frederick Carlton, the only child, who is unmarried, and who, with the widow, survives him. For seventeen years Mr. Van Houten has had a handsome country home on the banks of the Hudson at Nyack. It is from there the interment will take place on Saturday morning. The Corinthian Fleet at a recent meeting decided to establish a class of small craft which would be suitable, not only for racing, afternoon salling, and general use, but, at the same time, be inexpensive, and, after careful consideration, have adopted a type of craft now very popular at Atlantic City, N. J., as being best adapted for all-around work. Commodore W. W. Hollinssworth of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Atlantic City and also a member of the home club, started the fleet by presenting to the New Rochelle Corinthians his last year's crack Norseman, and in addition to boats which will be owned by members, the club will purchase one or two for general use. Their general dimensions are as follows: Leight over all, 15 feet; L. W. L., 13 feet; Leight over all, 15 feet; L. W. L., 15 freet; Leam (about), 4.6 feet; draught, 6 to 12 inches, and cost to build complete, with sails and spars, about $125. A number of members of the club at Atlantic City have accepted an invitation to visit the Corinthians at New Rochelle in July, sending their beats up on the deck of a large vessel, and as three prizes have been offered by the officers of the club, the races between the little boats promise to be very interesting.

A Battling Ten.cound Go at the New Mon. Members of the New Manhattan A. C. saw a first-class boxing show in the club's "gym' last night. The only thing to mar the sport was the decision of the judges in the ten-round bout between Paddy Purtell and William Quinn, which, though really won by the latter, was given, for some reason or other, to the former. J. J. Frawley was the referee, Dave Lewis and keeping his distance, and now and then driving in a good upper out to the wind. Moriarty kept up his offensive tactics in the third round and forced his man slowly around the ring. Devlin was still cool, andwat the close was punching the Holyoke boy on the wind.

Tom Devlin of Philadelphia and Tom Moriarty of Holyoke, Mass., were the first pair to put up their hands in an eight-round "go" at

Moriarty set the pace, and with a series of hard jabs he quickly cut Devlin's left eye open. The latter also drew blood from one of Moriarty's optics just as the first round ended. In the second round Moriarty rushed at the start, working his left on the face and sending his

Devlin was staggered in the fourth with a right on the jaw, but Moriarty failed to follow up his advantage, and Devlin recevered sufficiently to show plenty of tight before the bell rang. The fifth round was all in favor of Moriarty, who did the leading and landed effectively on Devlin's damaged eye and short ribs. Devlin was on the defensive, but was plucky and did his best to fight back. Moriarty extended himself in the sixth, but he could not put on the finishing touches, as Devlin's defence was clever, and he saved himself by olinching and sprinting. Devlin received some terrible body punches in the seventh, Moriarty rushing and slugging him for a knock out. Yet the Quaker was strong in his legs and refused to be sent down. In the last round Moriarty sailed in to win, and after a cauple of minutes of hot work, he caught bevilin on the jaw with a heavy right, which was followed by a similar blow, and Devlin received toward the ropes helpless. The referee caught him in his arms and saved him from falling. He also stopped the bout and declared Moriarty the winner.

The second bout was between Frank Gerrard of Chicago and Kid McPartland of this city. They met for eight rounds at 135 pounds. Gerrard's reputation in the West made him a favorite with the knowing ones, and when he stripped he certainly looked superior to the local man, for he was a head talier than McPartland and put to gether like a born puglist. McPartland opened with a rush and got in a strong left-hand jolton the jaw and eye swelling the latter until it must have felt as bit as a house. McPartland set himself out in the third and increased the size of the bugging right eye by banging it at lefts a dozen times with his swinging left. Gerrard's right eye was closed for the rest of the ni previous date, which saved so much time at the neavy nitting Kansas City welter weight.

Finer Roune—After a moment's fidding they came together, each landing right swings on the neck. Furtell jabbed his left on the nose, Quinn driving his right over the heart. Furtell swung a right to the jaw, Quinn staggering, but recovering speedily and rushing into a cilind.

Second Roune—Purtell shot his left straight to the mouth and lilli came back with a ripping left that caught Paddy on the ear. Quinn tried for the body with an upper cut, and his swing for the jaw lacked a true aim. Purtell up to this point had held his right in reserve. with an upper cut, and masswing to the law largest at true aim. Purtell up to this point had held his right in reserve.

Timp Rounn.—Purtell's left sent Quinn's head back. At close quarters they exchanged slift punches on the head with inoners about even. Purtell finally landed a color got up quickly and rushed, landing a hard left that raised a mouse on Paddy's eye.

Forers Rounn.—Quinn got in a couple of corkers on the face. Then he forced the fighting with a flerce rush which was neatly stopped. Purtell's defence was beautiful in the cyes of the critics. Quinn finally got home a great left on the neck which made Paddy clinch.

Fire Rounn.—Quinn began with a left upper cut that an indeed flush in the face. He put in another in that anne place, and drew blood from the mouth, Fursal then jabbed Hill in the noss for a little claret, and increased the flow with a corking right.

SETER ROUND.—After a minute of sparring Quinn rushed with a left on the mouth, which drew a hard counter on his neck and a hot upper cut in the wind. Purtell cut his right loose once, but it flow harmlessly over "Scaldy Hills" scarred head.

SEYENTH ROUND.—Purtell missed a swing, which let Quinn have a chance to cate him nappling and land two terrific swings on the head. Purtell then sent a hard right to the throat, only to receive a blow on the top of the head that flustered him a bit. Quinn's showing was a revelation, especially to his antagonist, who went to his corner looking pursies. Quinn then landed a terrific such a face and the blood pour from Faddy's next and and body until they clinched. Furtell on Purteil on the dead and body dust the variances, so kept away until the bell.

NEWR ROUND.—Quant Bill fell against the ropes, so nearly avoid replace the fell against the ropes, so nearly avoid right on the side of the head that Purteil Quinn, and Bill had to clinch.

Term Rouxs.—They shook hands and fell to slugging the blocksmiths. It was give and take all over the ring until both tired, and were rooting to hear the bell.

ring until both tired, and were rooting to hear the bell.

There were few persons present who believed that Quinn would not receive the verdict, or at least get a draw, but, to the surprise of all, the judges declared in favor of Purtell, who was almost thunderstruck when he heard the announcement. It was one of the worst decisions ever made in a local club house, and the crowdleft the gymnasium denouncing it in uncasured terms.

Afterward Manager Harry Cornish, who was indignant over the decivion, told The Sun reporter that judges at future contests before the club would be done away with, and that "Scaldy Bill" would receive another chance to retrieve his lost laurels.

Theodore Roosevelt Talks to Harvard Students.

CAMBRIDGE March 26.-Theodore Roosevelt, President of the New York Board of Police Commissioners, spoke at a mass meeting of Harvard students for nearly an hour to-night on the substudents for nearly an hour to-night on the subject, "Playing for Harvard." The meeting was the last in the series of football talks which have been arranged by Coach Deland, and it brought out the largest and most enthusiastic number of students that Harvard has seen for many a day. Mr. Roosevelt did some very plain talking about the way Harvard teams had been supported in the past and gave some sound advice for the future.

Speaker Meyer of the Massachusetts House of Representatives presided at the meeting.
Among the prominent football men present were Coach Deland, Capt. Wrightington, Bert Waters, Marshall, Newell, Lewis, and all the players now in college. The meeting broke up with three rousing cheers for Harvard.

J. WALSH STARTLES THE SPRINTERS. Double Win for a Georgetown Novice at the Twelfth Regiment.

Followers of amateur athletics and cycling mustered in goodly numbers last night at the joint games of the Pastime A. C. and Company I. Twelfth Regiment. The events were decided in the armory building. Sixty-second street and avenue, and furnished capital sport for several hours. The experiment of drawing the heats on a great success, and forty trial heats of the sprints were got through in fair schedule time. This section of the programme was signalized by the brilliant form of J. Walter Camp of Yale was Chairman of the college committee selected to form a uniform set of football rules, which met yesterday afternoon and evening at the University Athletic Club. The others in attendance were: L. M. Dennis, Cornell: J. H. Sears, Harvard: J. C. Belt, University of Pennsylvania: Pau Dashiell, Annapolls, and Alex Moffat, Princeton.

The proposed changes in the rules have been frequently commented on in The Six, and before final action is taken by the committee they must be endiorsed by the football associations of the different dorsen by the football associations of the different colleges.

"We have taken up the rules in detail," said Mr. Camp, "and the changes suggested at our meeting of Marca 14 and further modifications have been freely debated. The revelsions we make will be submitted again to the college associations, and later on, when all are satisfied, the committee will take official action. Until then nothing will be given out for pub-lication. At present our work is in a rather chaotic state."
